My results with the button tutorial..

The button tutorial was awesome. When I rolled over the button the image rapidly changed. I made image 1, using Photoshop, I used the custom shape tool and type tool. Then I changed the style. To create Image 2, I duplicated image 1 and changed the style. Afterwards I added my whole name to image 2 because for some reason Mr. Montante wanted it there (I think it was to be able to identify who the buttons belonged to from some website where I didn't put mines, but its okay). I used the code he gave the class to use, I inserted the image's name into the code and then saved it as a document and webpage thingy. It feels great knowing I accomplished this button tutorial, it was difficult but I did it. I really don't see me using this in the future. If anyone wants to create a website, he/she can use this tutorial because you can create any type of button. It's a little complicated but it's doable. Besides all the negatives, I guess this was fun...I wonder what's next.
